

THE NEUTRINO VIDEO PROJECT ★★★★★

Featuring Jen Radomsky, David Ivkovic. July 13, 5:15pm; July 15, 10:30pm.

Using the city of Toronto as its stage, The Neutrino Video Project combines talented improv actors with an equally talented film crew that shoots unscripted scenes on the fly for the audience in the theatre. Each of the four improvised storylines incorporates multiple camera angles, voice effects, a soundtrack as well as props donated from the pockets and purses of audience members before the show. The lag time between each scene is forgivable given the circumstances, but, even then, the audience is entertained with music and shots of the city. This high-tech production is as impressive as it is hilarious. Best of all, each performance is completely different, which means you can watch it again and again. DD
